

UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE OFFICE OF INTERNATIONAL ACADEMIC DIVISION LIST OF EXPIRED PROGRAMS NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR HIGHER EDUCATION - UGANDA NOTICE TO FUTURE PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

The National Council for Higher Education (NCHE) of Uganda is a government agency established in 2011 under the Ministry of Education and Sports. Its primary purpose is to regulate and oversee higher education in Uganda. The NCHE is responsible for accreditation, quality assurance, curriculum development, research promotion, coordination, and student support. By setting standards, ensuring quality, and fostering collaboration, the council aims to enhance the quality of higher education and contribute to Uganda's socioeconomic development.

The University of Cambridge collaborates with the National Council for Higher Education (NCHE) in Uganda to facilitate the admission of students into recognized programs. It is important to note that once a program expires, students who have completed or have been enrolled in that program for more than two years may face limitations in their academic pursuits, not only at the University of Cambridge but potentially across Europe. The University, being responsible for managing the higher education system throughout Europe, adheres to these regulations.

For students who have graduated from an expired program or have spent more than two years enrolled in such a program according to the NCHE guidelines, it becomes necessary to follow the prescribed procedures outlined by the NCHE, the Ministry of Education and Sports, and the University itself in order to seek approval for their courses. Failure to obtain approval may render their educational transcripts invalid, thus hindering their prospects for further education or employment in Europe. It is worth noting that similar systems may also apply in other parts of the world, including North America.

However, it is important to clarify that the University of Cambridge is not directly responsible for the specific procedures involved in approving expired courses or educational transcripts. These procedures are organized by the relevant parties mentioned earlier. Consequently, it is incumbent upon the student or their respective educational institution to coordinate and liaise with all parties involved to ensure a successful resolution.

In light of the challenges posed by this situation, students facing these circumstances have a couple of options to consider.

- 1. Firstly, they may choose to undertake a personalized, private program approval process involving the relevant entities such as the NCHE, the educational institution offering the expired program, the Ministry of Education and Sports, an accredited law firm, and others as required.
- 2. Alternatively, students may also contemplate repeating their education level by enrolling in an updated or active course to address the issue effectively.

It is crucial for affected students to carefully consider the implications of their situation and make informed decisions based on the available options. Proper adherence to the outlined procedures, collaboration with the involved parties, and a proactive approach will greatly contribute to a successful resolution.

The next page is a document from the National Council for Higher Education (NCHE) to University of Cambridge containing a comprehensive list of expired programs offered in Uganda. This list, which was last updated on the 20th of May, 2023, includes information on the programs that have exceeded their validity period and the respective institutions offering them. As part of our commitment to upholding academic standards and compliance, the University acknowledges the importance of being informed about these expired programs in order to make informed decisions regarding admissions and educational qualifications.
